PRESIDENT WILSON IS INAUGURATED

LOSE THEIR LIVES IN ATTEMPTING TO MAKE RESCUE

Eleven Members of Crew of Revenue Cutter Yamacraw Drowned in Effort to Aid Crew of Standard Oil Steamer

WILSON MAY TAKE ACTION TO ARM VESSELS

Secretary Lansing and Attor-
new General Called in Consultation on Matter.

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, March 5.—President
Wilson may yet take action to arm merchant vessels, despite the old laws dealing against such measures.

Following the issuance of the President's statement exhorting the senate illustrators for their action in blocking the passage of the bill, he was in communication with several administrative advisors who are well versed in international law.

The President called into consultation Secretary Lansing and the attorney general to examine the status and make a final decision for the President.

Should it be finally decided that the President has the necessary authority it is said that orders will be issued to arm the passenger and mail steamers of the American lines.

Norfolk, March 5.—Eleven members of the crew of the U. S. coast guard cutter Yamacraw, perished in an attempt to rescue the crew of the Standard Oil steamer Louisiana, ashore near winter quarter lightship.

In response to the call for help the men left the Yamacraw in a small boat, fighting their way through the heavy seas.

The little craft had just reached the side of the tank steamer when a high wave rolled the life boat over and the men into the raging sea. The crew of the vessel were powerless to render any assistance.

Four other ships hurried to the aid of the Louisiana.

The latest reports from the stranded steamer was that the water had reached her engine room and she was in danger of sinking.

CABINET IS RE-APPOINTED

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, March 5.—President
Wilson renounced his present cabinet today. Only three of the cabinet officers named four years ago have changed.

In His Inaugural Says It Is Imperative That the Nation Should Present a United Front in the Present Crisis That It Faces

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, March 5.—Facing, to use his own expression, not the retrospect but the thought of the present and the future, Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey subscribed to the oath of office to succeed himself as President of the United States.

Not since Abraham Lincoln's time has a President been inducted into office under such extreme national tension. The dominant note of the day was patriotism and this was in evidence on all sides as well as in the inaugural address of the President.

President Wilson never looked better than he did today. He seemed to have shaken off the air of worry and depression that he has worn for the past few weeks.

He was smiling all along the route of parade. He and Mrs. Wilson bowed their acknowledgments time and time again when they were acclaimed.

The scene along Pennsylvania was an animated one. Three carriages entirely surrounded by soldiers conveyed President Wilson, Vice President Marshall and Master of Ceremonies Herbert.

The Second U. S. Cavalry formed the personal escort for the President and the cavalry from the famous Culver Military school mounted on their con-black horses, acted in a similar capacity for Vice President Marshall.

The early morning was misty but it cleared up shortly after 9 o'clock much to the delight of all.

The city of Washington was beautiful in decorations, the national colors prevailing.

The one dominant note everywhere,
was America first.

President Wilson made this plain in his inaugural. The President insisted that the nation should present a uni-ed front in the present crisis that it faces.

He demanded a singleness of purpose in the days that are now before us.

This is not the time for retrospect.
It is time to speak our thoughts concerning the present and the future.

We have been deeply wronged upon the sea, but we have not wished to do-man anything but justice and equality for all. We stand for an armed neutrality and it seems in no other way can we demonstrate that fact to the world.

The greatest things we maintain must be done with the whole world for a stage. We are provincials no longer.
All nations must be equally interested in the peace of the world and the political stability of free people.

Peace cannot securely rest upon an armed power.

The seas should be free and equally safe for all people.

National armament should be limited to national safety.

It is imperative that we stand together in the present crisis.

We are being forced into a new immunity among the fires of the world.

The thing which I most count upon is the unity of America. The shadows that now lie dark upon our path will soon be dispelled and we shall walk with the light all about us, if we are true to ourselves.

BULGARIA WILL BREAK RELATIONS

Her Minister Will Demand His Passports This Week.

(Special to The Herald)

London, March 5.—Bulgaria has decided to break off diplomatic relations with the United States but Austria for the time will not sever diplomatic relations.

The Bulgarian minister at Washington will demand his passport this week on the ground that hostility towards Germany on the part of the United States was also directed towards his country.

BERLIN PRESS CLAIMS MEXICO WILL WAGE WAR

In the Event of Hostilities Between the United States and Germany.

(Special to The Herald)

Berlin, March 5.—Mexico will begin war against the U. S. at once if war breaks out between the United States and Germany. A portion of the press believes General Carranza will act on his own initiative if it suited. It is also stated that Cuba and the Philippines are ready to take up arms against the United States in the event of war.

BRITISH LINER DRYNA SUNK BY SUBMARINE

Had a Cargo of Argentine Meat for Liverpool.

Buenos Aires, March 5.—The British liner Dryna, 11,443 tons, carrying passengers and a cargo of meat from Argentine for Liverpool, has been sunk, presumably by a submarine, the local office of the Royal Mail Steamship announced today.

The passengers and crew were landed on the English coast.

ing Vessels Were Destroyed.

(Special to The Herald)

Berlin, March 5.—Two submarines which recently returned to their home bases reported that they had sunk 15 steamers and 7 sailing vessels, having an aggregate of 64,500 tonnage.

President Wilson Says An Extra Session is Needed, But Useless Now—Failure of Much Legislation Has Paralyzed Government

Washington, March 5.—In a formal statement President Wilson last night informed the country that he may be without power to arm merchant ships and take other steps to meet the German submarine menace, in the absence of authority from congress.

An extra session of congress, the President says, is required to cloth-him with authority, but it is useless to call one while the senate works under the present rules which permit a small minority to keep an overwhelm-

POET WHO OFFENDED KAISER OUT OF ARMY

Washington, March 5—Captain Geo. Stuenkel, famous army poet, fien in hot water on account of his verses, and once said to have been rebuked because his poem, "The German Train- Army of the Turks," offended the Kaiser, is out of the army.

He has been in ill health following a nervous breakdown two years ago and is now to be retired at his own request. He is a brother of the late Gov. Stuenkel, assassinated some years ago.

Here are verses from the poem that angered the Kaiser and almost brought Stuenkel before an army court-martial: Away for Constantinople the hosts of Allah sped, And the only one that halted were the ones that stopped the dead. Quoth a Serbian lieutenant then: 'Tis evident to me That your army has been studying the books of von Molt-keel!"

Said a panting Turkish corporal— From the German teaching read— "We ain't much on formation but we sure are hell for speed!" So they sprinted night and morning 'Till their lungs were fit to burst, But they won the six-day Marathon—they reached the city first!

A tale that points a moral. Most anyone can see That it's time to disregard the ways o' Jackson, Grant and Lee; For the Sacred Scripture tells us: "Ye shall know them by their works"; So we lift our hats to von der Goltz, the man who trained the Turks!

And now while Europe trembles on the verge of deadly fray, The dove of peace is cooling in the good old U. S. A. For, you bet, the foreign powers will leave Uncle Sam alone While our highbrows down at Leavenworth are studying von Rohne.

And while the German eagle soars above the Balkan storm, It strikes us as a fitting time to change the uniform! Let's get one of those shiny things they wear across the breast, And add a gleaming helmet with an eagle on the crest.

And do wait sunny Leavenworth let Dute professors rule, And build a model brewery—an annex to the school—

A marble bust of von der Goltz, resplendent in the hall, And photographs of Kaiser Bill adorning every wall.

And he who seeks promotion must subside a solid year On pretzels, cheese and wienersurst, and good old German beer; And notify the colonels—sound the warning near and far!— That they've got to sing the "Die Wacht am Rhein" before they get the star.

When he was 22 years old Captain Stuenkel had a desire for service in the navy and applied for the position of stoker. He did his work so well that when he was mustered out he was an engineer yeoman and a finely educated young man for one of his opportunities.

At the beginning of the war with Spain he was living in Idaho, and was appointed a second lieutenant in the First Volunteer Infantry of that state. When the regiment was mustered out in September, 1900, Stuenkel was a captain.

Stuenkel liked the army so well that he refused to go back to civilian life and six weeks later after he was mustered out, Captain Stuenkel was a private in the Eleventh U. S. Vol. Cavalry. He was soon made a corporal then a sergeant, and finally first sergeant of Troop A. In December, 1900, he became a first lieutenant in the Forty-eighth United States Volunteer Infantry and was appointed a first lieutenant in the Thirtieth Cavalry in February, 1901. He did not accept the commission until October of that year and in 1908 went to the Twenty-eighth Infantry. He received his captaincy in the Seventeenth Infantry in 1911 and was transferred to the Twenty-fifth Infantry a year later. His retirement is a real loss to the army.

EXTRA SESSION USELESS WITH EXISTING RULES

of the United States helpless and contemptible." The President's statement in full follows:

"The termination of the last session of the 64th congress by constitutional limitation discloses a situation unparalleled in the history of the country, perhaps unparalleled in the history of any modern government. In the immediate presence of a crisis fraught with more subtle and far-reaching possibilities of national danger than any other government has known within the whole history of its international relations, the congress has been unable to act either to safeguard the country or to vindicate the elementary rights of its citizens.

"More than 500 of the 532 members of the two houses were ready and anxious to act; the house of representatives had acted, by an overwhelming majority, but the senate was unable to act because a little group of 11 senators had determined that it should not.

"The senate has no rules by which debate can be limited or brought to an end, no rules by which dilatory tactics of any kind can be prevented. A single member can stand in the way of action if he have but the physical endurance. The result, in this case is a complete paralysis alike of the legislative and the executive branches of the government.

"This inability of the senate to act has rendered some of the most necessary legislation of the session impossible, at a time when the need of it was most pressing and most evident. The bill which would have permitted such combinations of capital and of organization in the export and import trade of the country as the circumstances of international competition have made imperative—a bill which the business judgment of the whole country approved and demanded—has failed.

"The opposition of one or two senators has made it impossible to increase the membership of the Interstate Commerce Commission or to give it the altered organization necessary for its efficiency. The conservation bill which should have been released for immediate use the mineral resources which are still locked up in the public lands, now that their release is more imperative than ever, and the bill which would have made the unusual water power of the country immediately available for industry have both failed though they have been under consideration throughout the sessions of two congresses, and have been twice passed by the house of representatives.

"The appropriations for the army have failed along with the appropriations for the civil establishment of the government, the appropriations for the Military Academy at West Point and the general deficiency bill.

"It has proved impossible to extend the powers of the shipping board to meet the special needs of the new situation into which our commerce has been forced, or to increase the gold reserve of our national banking system to meet the unusual circumstances of the existing financial situation.

"It would not cure the difficulty to call the 65th congress in extraordinary session. The paralysis of the senate would remain. The purpose of the spirit of action are not lacking now. The congress is more definitely united in thought and purpose at this moment. I venture to say, than it has been within the memory of any man now in its membership. There is not only the most united patriotic purpose, but the objective members have in view are perfectly clear and definite.

"But the senate cannot act unless its leaders cannot obtain unanimous consent. In the midst of a crisis of extraordinary peril, when only definite and decided action can make the nation safe or shield it from the war itself by the aggression of others, action is impossible.

"Although as a matter of fact the nation and the representatives of the nation stand back of the executive with unprecedented unanimity and spirit, the impression made abroad will of course be that it is not so, and that other governments may act as they please without fear that this government can do anything at all. We cannot explain. The explanation is incredible.

"The senate of the United States is the only legislative body in the world which cannot act when its majority is ready for action. A little group of willfuls, representing no opinion but their own, have rendered the great government of the United States helpless and contemptible.

"The remedy? There is but one remedy. The only remedy is that the rules of the senate shall be so altered that it can act. The country can be relied upon to dry the moral. I believe that the senate can be relied on to supply what rendered the situation even more country from disaster."

At the same time the President authorized the further statement that what relegated the situation even more grave than had been supposed was the discovery, that while the President under his general constitution powers could do much of what he had asked congress to empower him to do, it had been found that there were certain old statutes, as yet unreplicated, which may raise insuperable obstacles and virtually nullify his power.

The old law referred to by the President was adopted by congress in 1819, and referred to the resistance of American merchantmen to the attacks of privateers and pirates, but excluded from vessels which might be so attacked "a public armed vessel of a nation in amity with the United States". Technically, Germany is not at war with the United States, and submarines are "public armed vessels" of Germany.

ROW WHEN CABARET GIRL SINGS IN CHURCH

Chicago, March 4.—Should a singer who earns her living in a cabaret be permitted to lift her voice in praise of the Lord in a church on Sunday?

This is the question which is agitating religious circles here.

"Yes, if her character be irreproachable," says the Rev. John P. Brushingham, pastor of the South Park Methodist Episcopal Church, in which the question first was put.

"No," thunders one faction of his congregation, and the word finds echo in other churches, although Mr. Brushingham also has found his stand supported by some of his fellow clergymen.

Miss Dale Winter, twenty, blonde and pretty, is the innocent cause of it all. It has been said of her that she has the voice of an angel and the face of a goddess. By night, during the week, she earns money to support herself and her mother and to pay for her musical education by charming those who frequent Collins's cafe, in the notorious Twenty-second street district. Also on occasion she appears in recitals. It was at one of these that Mr. Brushingham and his wife heard her and invited her to sing for their church. She accepted.

The congregation was enthusiastic over the new soloist until it discovered her cabaret job. Then there was a row that threatened to split the congregation. Mr. Brushingham stood pat.

"I am informed that Miss Winter is of most excellent character," he said. "She is supporting her mother and paying off indebtedness incurred by the later's long illness and she is paying for a musical education. If she wishes to sing in the church she will be welcome as far as I am concerned. It is our duty to receive her into our midst."

"She shall not sing here unless she quits the cabaret," was the edict of several of the more stern in the congregation.

Miss Winter heard of the commotion and settled the thing herself.

"Pooh, pooh," she said in her soft, charming drawl. "If some of the church members object to my appearing with the choir, I shall not sing for them at all. They were able to hear me for nothing. Now either they'll come to the cabaret and spend money to hear me or they'll pay cash to attend my recitals."

Incidentally the agitation has reached such a pass that one church has deposited its star Sunday school teacher because it was learned that on week days she worked as a telephone-girl in a brewery.

PRESIDENT RENEWS OATH WITHOUT POMP OR FRILLS

Only Mrs. Wilson and a Few Friends and Officials Witnessed Brief Ceremonies to be Repeated Publicly Today

Washington, Sunday.—In a solemn atmosphere of strained expectancy and apprehension that events of the gravest nature are imminent, President Wilson, in the presence of a very few, took the oath of office as President of the United States for the second time, at the capitol at noon today. The oath was administered without pomp or frills by Chief Justice White of the Supreme Court and the President immediately returned to his private office to continue his official duties. The oath will be repeated publicly tomorrow at the east front of the White House, so that the traditional formality of the oath-taking ceremony may be observed. It had been intended to postpone the administering of the oath until Monday but to avoid any question as to whether the country would be without a president from noon today until the formal ceremony tomorrow, it was decided that Mr. Wilson would be sworn into office at noon.

Few Witnessed Ceremony

Mrs. Wilson and a few guests, including cabinet officers and their wives, were the only witnesses to the ceremony. This is the first inauguration within the memory of the present generation at least, that the "party" of the President was not to be observed. As such, it is not to be found among the crowds. Generally this type of citizen from all over the country comes into Washington emitting cries of joy as he meets fellow partisans from other sections of the country, exchanging congratulations with them and tells them how the "trick" was turned in his state. But he is absent this year.

The talk here is not of what happened last November but of what is happening now and what may happen this week. There is no war talk—that is, of the loud, boastful sort. All the conversation is quiet and even and generally in subdued tones.

Atmosphere Grave and Stern

Persons here from other states have found the same grave, stern, atmosphere pervading Congress as that which is noticeable elsewhere throughout the capital. Congress is anxious and serious and the tone of its deliberations indicates that plainly.

There is nothing to excite the galleries in the way they go to work. The galleries are as serious minded as the lawmakers.

The President went early to the capitol to sign bills passed by the Congress just before the session ended. The oath will then be administered and the new term will be on its way. Several thousand persons from all parts of the country have arrived for the inauguration ceremonies. The weather forecast for tomorrow is "fair and colder."

Rain Marks Decorations

The rain of the last two days has done much to mar the decorations in Pennsylvania avenue, the line of march of the parade. Workmen have been busy with pails of white paint and rolls of fresh bunting to repair the damage.

TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF SUBMARINES HERE

(By E. W. Hartford)

Washington, March 2.—Unless all signs fail Portsmouth will have $200,000 at once for the work of fitting for submarine construction. The following letter which was read into the record settles that point:

The President of the Navy, The Secretary of the Navy, Washington, Feb. 6, 1917.

Sir: In compliance with the resolution of the Senate, as follows: "Resolved, That the Secretary of the Navy be directed to furnish the present status of the appropriation of $6,000,000 made in the act of August 23, 1916, known as the naval appropriation bill, which authorized him to improve and equip the navy yards at Puget Sound, Philadelphia, Norfolk, New York, Boston, Portsmouth, Charleston and New Orleans, for the construction of ships at such yards, giving the amount expended and to be expended at such yards, and the conditions at each of those yards for building ships heretofore ordered to be constructed."

No fixed appropriation or distribution of the entire $6,000,000 appropriation has been made to these various yards, but it has been decided to fit up the Philadelphia yard for battle-destroyer construction, and the cost will be in the neighborhood of $3,000,000; the Norfolk yard for dreadnaught construction, to cost about $1,250,000; the Puget Sound yard for auxiliary ships of 12,000 tons, to cost about $750,000; the Charleston yard for gunboats and destroyers, to cost about $300,000; the Boston yard is already equipped to build a ship of 12,000 tons, and it will require $750,000 to extend ways and other improvements; and the Portsmouth yard for the construction of submarines, to cost about $200,000.

These plans are dependent upon the extent of the improvement of the various yards for shipbuilding, and it may be necessary to recast and alter some of the authorizations already made, the general plan at present being tentative and subject to change in case my recommendations for an additional appropriation of $12,000,000 for fitting the navy yards for shipbuilding is approved by Congress.

Complying with the concluding question in the resolution, the Puget Sound Navy Yard has assigned to it an ammunition ship, which this yard at the present time is not equipped to construct. Steps are being taken to so equip it.

The Philadelphia yard has had assigned to it the construction of a hospital ship, which it is equipped to construct. It is contemplated improving and extending the shipbuilding equipment materially.

The Norfolk yard has assigned to it the construction of a destroyer, which it is equipped to construct. It is contemplated to materially enlarge its equipment so that it may construct larger vessels.

The New York yard has assigned to it for construction two battleships, one on the ways and one in preparation for building. It is at present equipped for this purpose.

The Boston yard has assigned to it the construction of a fuel ship. It is equipped, and its equipment is being increased for this purpose.

The Portsmouth yard has under construction two submarines. It is equipped for this purpose, and its equipment is being extended with a view to increasing its submarine-building facilities.

The Charleston yard has assigned to it the construction of a gunboat, it is equipped for this purpose, and its equipment is being extended with a view to construction by it of destroyers.

The New Orleans yard is not equipped for the construction of vessels, and it is not contemplated to so equip it, as it is believed this yard should at the present time be devoted exclusively to repair work.

Respectfully,
JOSEPHUS DANIELS,

Secretary of the Navy.

The President of the United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

The following debate regarding navy yard storage facilities at navy yards was heard on Thursday:

Mr. Weeks. Does the Senator know anything about the storage facilities at the Portsmouth Navy Yard?

Mr. Tillman. I do not. I think they are ample, though.

Mr. Weeks. I have an impression that there is an excessive amount of storage there, and the inquiry that goes through my mind is whether some part of that could not be used instead of constructing this large amount of additional storage capacity.

Mr. Tillman. What good will it do for the navy to have it at Portsmouth, N. H., when it needs it down on the Gulf? Have they got to send all the way to Portsmouth to get things that they need?

Mr. Weeks. I am not suggesting that storage that is being provided at Pensacola could be supplied at Portsmouth, but if there is an excessive amount at Portsmouth I think the amount provided for at New York might be somewhat reduced.

Mr. Tillman. I think so, too.

Mr. Weeks. In other words, I do think we ought to keep those items as low as possible, because they do not add any thing to the fighting strength of the Navy.

$50,000 for New Tools, Electrical Work Remain in Bill.

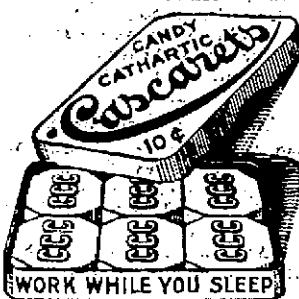

"Naval vessels, yard craft, and ships' boats; purchase, installation, repair, and preservation of machinery, tools and appliances in navy yards and stations, including $50,000 for the purchase and installation of tools in the electrical shop at the navy yard, Portsmouth, N. H."

Disagreeable weather for the inaugural ceremonies in Washington; but it is in keeping with the political situation.

CONTRACTS WILL BE EXEMPT

Boston, March 4.—The Boston & Maine Railroad has placed a partial embargo on east-bound freight routed through Mechanicville, Rotterdam or Troy, according to a statement issued last night which says: "The road is in much better condition so far as cars on its line are concerned than it was a year ago, but the sudden movement of freight toward the east without a reciprocal movement westward, raises the possibility of congestion. For that reason this temporary embargo is placed to take effect at midnight, March 4."

Articles exempted from the embargo are as follows: Shipments originating at Troy, Albany or on the New York Central Railroad, south of Troy; live stock, perishable foodstuffs for human consumption, feed for live stock, newspaper, coal, coke, fuel oil, field and garden seed, fertilizer, agricultural implements, nursery stock, empty milk bottles, shipments of empty cans intended for the condensed milk industry, material consigned to railroads; Western Union Telegraph Company and the United States Government, provided billing hours notation. "This material to be manufactured for use of the United States Government."

"This embargo will not apply to shipments of export freight via the Port of Boston which are at present covered by a specific embargo on such traffic when not authorized by F. P. Farrar, commercial agent, Boston," the statement says.

SHAMROCK A. C. NAMES OFFICERS FOR THE SEASON

CLUB WILL PUT VAST BASEBALL TEAM IN THE FIELD.—MEETING
FOLLOWED BY TURKEY
SUPPER

At a meeting held on Sunday afternoon the Shamrock Athletic Club started things moving in baseball circles by electing officers for the coming season. J. Moran was elected captain and P. Reardon manager of the team. The officers elected for the association were: C. W. Sullivan, president; J. Moran, vice president; J. Cronin, secretary; and Doc Grady, treasurer.

The meeting was followed by a turkey supper, with Coach Carty acting as toastmaster. The club played some fast games last season among the younger teams and a successful season is promised, much enthusiasm having been shown at the meeting.

HOT SPRINGS ATTRACT
WILD ELK NEAR CITY
Denver, Col., March 3.—A herd of forty elk has been discovered ranging within five miles of Steamboat Springs, Colo. The nearest elk have come to the town in years. The hot springs, five miles from town, cover a considerable area, and the steam which arises from them keeps the snow off the ground for a wide radius. The grass remains green the year round, and the elk, driven in this year by the great snowstorms, have ventured in to feed on it.

COPS AGAIN CORRALLED BY PRESS

THREE POINTS, INCLUDING TO-TAL PINFALL, WON FROM PO-LICE TEAM BY PENCIL PUSH-ERS IN THEIR SECOND MEETING.

The champion Portsmouth police bowling team, flanked and backed by every available member of the department, including night police, special police, police reserves, ex-police, representatives of the Borax club of citizens eligible for service, turned out on Saturday, mobbing at the Elks' Alleys, to cheer and encourage the team to win a victory from the Press Club. The crowd of coolers centered their efforts to a great extent with the object of getting the goat of one of the pencil pushers, and in the first string they succeeded. This, coupled with the pins gained by kidding the score keeper, enabled the Cops to cop the first string, giving them a lead of fifty-nine pins. And they thought the victory was theirs.

To go on with the story. The goal grabbing methods were continued in the second string without letting up, but in some manner the goat refused to depart. Then Moulton came through with a nice 86, and McDonough hammered the wood for 107. The other three bowlers held up their ends, and the pencil pushers rolled up a string total of 422 against the cops' 376. The newspapermen thus cut the lead of fifty-nine down to thirteen; with one point to the credit of each team.

Now for the sad news. Goat getters, professional, amateur, regular and volunteer, each took a long breath and went at it again with unabated fury. Result—none. The goat stayed right at home. Then Moulton rolled 100 against his man's 68. Some gain, and McDonough gained another twenty-four from his opponent, and the string ended with a lead of 36 for the writers, giving them the total pinfall by twenty-three, and allowing them three of the four points in the match.

The Press Club certainly missed its one royal rooster, Assessor John Yarrow, who in the previous games has stood ready to back them to the hilt. His loyal support was greatly missed. Manager (?) James Quill was on the job, but he had mighty little to say after the first string was totaled. With the start of the third string, when the sun came out behind the clouds of positive defeat, he again put in an appearance.

For the victors Moulton rolled high with a score of 281, and McDonough rolled the high single with 107. Smart rolled high for the police with a total of 277. The summary:

Press Club
Moulton	85	96	100—281
McCarthy	65	72	65—202
Kane	67	67	67—201
McDonough	81	107	84—272
Lythgoe	49	80	82—211
Police
Gray	73	78	69—237
Murphy	82	78	80—239
Ducker	66	65	64—195
Harley	78	68	60—206
Smart	100	85	89—277
Total
	406	376	362 1144

Looking for Action
Following the game Saturday afternoon Chris Smart challenged Lythgoe and McDonough to a three-string match on the Elks' Alleys on Wednesday afternoon. Patrolman McLean to be his partner. The challenge was accepted and the game will be rolled at 3.15 p. m.

WIVES UNAPPRECIATIVE SAYS MAN CHAMPION

Chicago, March 4.—At last a champion has arisen for man in his humility.

Professor M. V. O'Shea of Wisconsin University, an authority on education and psychology, is the champion.

"I should like to see the man's side of the domestic situation dealt with," he says. "Man always has had so little attention paid to his side of these things."

"Nowadays, the way life goes, the man is concerned in acquiring the money for the living. His are the responsibilities and he must meet them. The wife, in most instances, is concerned only with spending the income. "Because of modern conditions, the place of earning the livelihood is so far away from the home that the wife usually has little realization of the effort to restrain it may require to get it. She doesn't appreciate it at all.

"It's the same way with our children. We bring them up so that they have no idea of the value of money. They want things and they get them, and for all they know the money for them grew on the bushes."

"But the man struggles along to get the income and if things go wrong the wife has no realization of his struggle. He works on under constant pressure and her understanding usually is measured by the amount he is able to turn over to her."

"She can't see how things are and a man can't tell. He must just endure and bottle himself up. It isn't for him to make excuses or complain."

"A woman has only to weep and she can have everything. But if a man sheds tears he'd be hissed out of existence."

"Man is the most inhibited of all creatures and his side ought to be given a showing."

CHARITY CONCERT FOR THE JEWISH WAR SUFFERERS

On next Sunday evening, under the auspices of the Portsmouth Hebrew Ladies' Aid Association, a benefit concert will be given at the Colonial Theatre, in aid of the Jewish sufferers in the warring countries of Europe. Mrs. Samuel M. Cohen, chairman of the committee in charge of the affair, and her assistants, have secured the services of the best talent available in the city and an elaborate program has been arranged which will be announced in the local papers tomorrow.

The benefit has been arranged in place of the tag day which was postponed some weeks ago. The head of the Jewish Relief Committee in the United States made an announcement last week that the committee's treasury was depleted and funds were exhausted in many of the branch treasuries. He made an appeal to the chairman of all branch societies to make an effort to bring the funds up to a figure which would allow of the continuation of the work which has been going on in this country for the past two years.

Subscription tickets on sale at Everybody's Store and can be obtained from any member of the committee. Among those who have volunteered their services are Mrs. William P. Gray, John Mitchell, C. W. Gray, Mrs. Oliver W. Priest, Miss Katherine O'Leary, Ernest P. Bilbruck and others.

tin and Seth Campbell, brothers, who live in Bedford, both well advanced in years, were very seriously injured when the automobile, in which they were riding came into collision with an electric car at the corner of Elm, Hancock and West Main streets Saturday night. Both men were thrown out with great violence, and were taken to a hospital. Their machine was demolished.

PLANT CANTALOUPE WHEN COLD KILLS OATS

Moultrie, Ga., March 3.—It is an ill omen that blows nobody good. Because the recent freeze destroyed the oats crop in Southern Georgia, more cantaloupes have been planted than ever before. It is estimated more than 1,000 cars of cantaloupes will be shipped from Moultrie alone.

JOHN LANGDON CLUB POST- PONEMENT.

On account of the sudden illness of the Rev. Mr. Jump of Manchester, who was to have been the principal speaker at the meeting of the John Langdon Club this evening, it was announced last evening that the meeting would be postponed to a later date which will be announced within a few days.

UNITARIAN CHURCH ALLIANCE

The Women's Alliance connected with the Unitarian church will hold the monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock at the church chapel on Court street. Mrs. Mary B. Davis will speak on the work of the Alliance and Mrs. Charles F. Stillaber and Mrs. Warren N. Davis will serve tea. All interested are cordially invited.

The State is arranging, through the legislature, to celebrate the 300th anniversary of New Hampshire in 1923. We can beat them to it by celebrating the 150th anniversary of the erection of Portsmouth Light in 1921.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

WE EAT TOO MUCH MEAT WHICH CLOGS KIDNEYS, THEN BACK HURTS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally. Else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

PORTSMOUTH ATHLETIC CLUB MEETING

A special meeting of the P. A. C. will be held on Tuesday evening, March 6, at 8 o'clock, to ballot on applications and to transact any other business that may come before the meeting. There will be a meeting of the Carnival Committee at 8.30 o'clock.

"Feeling Tough, Jim—"

Portsmouth, N. H., Monday, March 5, 1917.

Winter's Departure.

Winter as it is known in this part of the country, where winter is the real thing, is nearly gone. In fact, according to the old-fashioned reckoning, it is gone and spring is here, though actually winter departs and spring arrives when the sun crosses the line about the 20th of March, when the weather-prophets note the temperature and the direction of the wind as a groundwork for their predictions of what the weather will be for the ensuing three months.

All through this part of the country winter means much. It is a long season of cold weather and many severe storms. The ground is usually frozen to a considerable depth. Farmers have to guard their cellars carefully to protect their vegetables and fruits from frost, and in the cities and villages heavy damages are frequently suffered from the freezing of water pipes. Country roads are often blocked with snow, the railroads and trolley lines have their troubles and there are times when everybody is unhappy but the ice men and the plumbers. The past winter has not been one of unusual severity, but it has been winter most of the time. One of its peculiarities, in some sections at least, has been the absence of sunshine for a very large part of the time. Old inhabitants can hardly recall a darker winter. There has not been a large amount of snow in many sections where there usually is much more, but the weather has been such that the small body of snow has made a great amount of sleighing. On the whole, the season has been fully as comfortable as the average and reasonable people have no fault to find.

And now March is here with all its possibilities. It is a month that gives us a great mixture of weather, ranging from severe wintry conditions, as evidenced by the blizzard of Sunday night, to very balmy days. It is the maple sugar month and preparations for securing this delectable crop will soon be under way. Following comes April with its showers, the birds and all the evidences of spring in the full meaning of the word. Under the bright skies and the warm sun winter will seem like a thing of the distant past and all nature will rejoice in the beautiful and fruitful season ahead.

During the winter season there is apt to be more or less complaint of its harshness, but, all things considered, this is a very good part of the country to live in. If this were not so it would not be as thickly settled and prosperous as it is and the people would not be as happy as they are.

Some are beginning to wonder if the money used for food price investigations might not be better used in affording relief to those who are suffering. After all that has been done the national House has voted an appropriation of $400,000 for the work of investigation, and there is no telling where the end will be. Furthermore, the people would like more substantial results from these investigations than they have yet seen. They are becoming tired of paying big money to be told that it would be better for them if they would eat more corn meal, skimmed milk and fish.

When the late Mrs. Hetty Green was alive very few people cared where she lived or what she did with her cherished millions, but now four states are claiming that they were her legal residence and each will do its best to substantiate its claims. They all want the inheritance tax, which amounts to a number of millions.

An American ship building company has taken a contract to build two large steamers for the Cunard line, this being the first contract of the kind that the British have given to an American firm in fifty years. War makes business and so do big fires, but the world would be better off if there could be less of both.

Figures given out by men supposed to know show that the food value of rice is more than 86 per cent, while that of potatoes is only a little more than 23 per cent. And yet the people demand potatoes at any price, a condition on which the majority of them are not prepared to accept national peace.

A Georgia man was arrested the other day for reckless driving of his automobile, and one of the gasoline tanks was found loaded with whiskey. And Georgia is one of the leading temperance states of the country today. But, of course, this tank full of "goods" was for "personal use."

Some cities are reporting a slight reduction in the prices of provisions, but when it is stated that potatoes have "gone down" to 90 cents a peck one is reminded that the cost of living has reached a tremendous altitude.

Is this Mexico-Japanese menace the result of another "leak?"

Editorial Comment

Must Holland Fight?

(From the Louisville Courier-Journal)
Nobody in America, and, apparently, nobody elsewhere, has blamed Holland for refusing to join the United States in severing diplomatic relations with a powerful and savage neighbor, but the question which arises from German piracy while remaining neutral than they would suffer from German enmity if they should send the German ambassador home and declare war.

Very Cheap Talk

(From the Lawrence Telegram)
It is no time for American citizens to be threatening to kill each other over the questions of who is right or who is wrong in the European war. It is no time for the hurling of words that burn and hiss with the venomous poison of old wounds, old hatreds, old world quarrels.

It is no time for such a display of rancor and bitterness as was witnessed in the Massachusetts Legislature after Representative Atwood had introduced his resolution in favor of an embargo on American food products.

Both Representatives Sherburne and Lomasney are probably sorry that they gave quite as excited and let loose such fiery and murderous words over their favorites in the European war. But those words got into print and it will be a long time before their effect is lost.

For Representative Sherburne, colonel in the militia, may not have actually meant it when he said that if we went to war as an ally of England, Representative Lomasney and his kind would be stood up against a stone wall to face a firing squad and he would be glad to order the shooting. But it was an unwise thing to say and will bear evil fruit just as it was an unwise thing for Representative Lomasney to portray England as the embodiment of all that was bad and as the leader of the European war.

We are not going to make one American nation out of all the races in this country if our legislators are going to give cheap and nasty exhibitions of old world racial narrowness and bitterness.

War will let loose many evils and give opportunities for many evil disposed persons to commit individual crimes in the name of liberty and of civilization.

Our spokesmen in the State legislatures or in Congress should not by their speeches put it into the minds of the unthinking that they would be justified in the event of war of taking weapons and gratifying their private grudges. If they continue to do so, this country may see a frightful condition of affairs within our own borders if war is declared.

Good "Gun-Men" Wanted

(From the Brooklyn Standard-Union)
Where would gun pointers be found if the Government decided to arm American merchantmen?

The statement is made that there is a totally inadequate reserve and that while enough guns have been collected to fit out all vessels likely to apply for them, expert men to work the weapons cannot be had unless they are taken from active service in the navy. This would somewhat cripple this all-important branch of the military establishment. Manifestly it would be folly to dispatch a vessel with guns manned by green or half-trained crews.

The scarcity of gun pointers is additional evidence, if such evidence were needed, of the shameful unpreparedness of the United States. Why an ample reserve of these men has not been created during the past two and a half years is another puzzle that must be added to the many puzzling things which have come out of the Navy Department.

The New Hampshire Spirit

(From the Nashua Telegraph)
We publish herewith a letter to his mother from a Junior at Harvard, whose home is in Concord. The young man has joined the Harvard reserve officers' training corps. This letter breathes the patriotic spirit of New Hampshire. It does more. It shows that the young men of the country are not indifferent to the calls of civilization and humanity, and it recognizes the fact that barbarism, triumphant in Europe, will next be knocking at our doors. The cry of the pacifists for peace when there is no peace has a vigorous answer in the letter of this young man, who volunteers for the service of his country:

"My Dear Mother:—In this crisis you and other women should offer your services to Governor Keyes. You can help a lot in making bandages and in the work of the Red Cross. Be patriotic!"

"I have joined the Harvard reserve officers' training corps, and we are to drill nine hours a week. In case of war, we shall be equipped here in Cambridge this summer, at the freshman dormitories. When we are called out we shall be made second lieutenants."

"You say we have not been neutral. Why should we be, when such atrocities are going on abroad in Belgium and on the sea, when women and children are slain, when cathedrals are fired and houses burned, all without cause, except to satiate the lust of the Hun and the imperial murderer in Berlin. Read the papers and note how the Germans have separated families in Belgium and left the people to starve. We were much incensed before our Revolution when the British separated families in Acadia. Why not now? In the last three years things have happened that we would not have believed possible in a civilized world. It has not been the slaughter of soldiers, but the maiming, wounding and killing of helpless women and children that has shocked the neutral world. Such things have not happened since the Goths sacked Rome. And we have sat back in our comfort and have not aided the Allies in their resistance against these forces who wish to destroy all that is best in civilization."

"Neutral, no! Why should we be? All that is best in us calls us to destroy these ravenous Huns, these savage cave men without even the gloss of humanity, who in their rapaciousness stop at nothing. If they are victorious, our turn will come next. I look to you to do your duty and offer your services to the country, if needed."

Why the Germans Retire

(From the Syracuse Post-Standard)
The Germans have shortened their lines over the Aeneas front in order to fall back on positions more easily defended. It must not be assumed from this retreat that the Germans are admitting more than a weakness of the positions they were holding. The German military staff is merely ordering the new line of defense which the allies will occupy for the next grand offensive of the Allies.

When the Germans were driven back from the Marne they chose the positions which they could defend most easily. Their retreat was not a rout; they had opportunity to select a new battle line which could be easily defended; these positions had all been selected in advance in anticipation of this withdrawal. The offensives of the French and British have not gained much in ground, but the Germans have been driven from positions chosen because they could be easily defended. They are retiring now because of the blows dealt upon them last fall.

The British and French have a superiority of men and guns upon the western front now. They will do more than nibble. For the proper handling of artillery and of infantry in a concerted attack along a long line of entrenched positions there is need of solid ground and of clear air. It is a game for summer. The British and French will certainly undertake the greatest offensive of the whole war, with an artillery bombardment of enemy positions such as the world has never known, during the summer. The Germans know it is coming, they know that for the first time since the war began they are to meet an attacking enemy as well equipped as they, as well trained, and as well officered.

They will retire along that western front just so far as Hindenburg decides to be wise, in order to meet that attack under the most favorable conditions. The present retirement of the Germans means no more than that.

If He Eats One

(From the Atlanta Constitution)
Considering the food shortage in Germany the Kaiser must be a little curious as to the place where he'll eat his next Christmas dinner.

Pacifists Opening Their Eyes

(From the Springfield Union)
Many well-meaning and by no means unpatriotic persons, who are opposed to war if by any honorable means it can be avoided, are finding it extremely difficult to determine where pacifism ends and pro-Germanism begins. They see, for one thing, that virtually every pro-German publication in the United States, while defending Prussian militarism and upholding all the military acts of Germany, at the same time voices strenuous opposition to any steps toward adequate preparedness for national defense on the part of the United States. The pro-Germans use identically the same arguments against preparedness and against the armed assertion and defense of American rights as are used by the American pacifists, but, of course, with a different object in view. Gradually some of the pacifists are beginning to get their eyes open and to see wherein it is to the advantage of Germany to have the United States helpless and unprepared.

Paying Its Debts First

(From the Nashua Telegraph)
At the legislative hearing before the Massachusetts legislature it was stated by Philip Dexter for the Boston & Lowell railroad that the Boston & Maine will not be good enough for the leased lines to go into unless it pays its debts and has settled the claim of the Hampden railroad.

This was one of the mooted points before the New Hampshire legislature two years ago. Our legislative body took the ground that the leased lines were in no wise responsible for the debts of the Boston & Maine railroad, and that their property should not be used to pay these liabilities. The Boston & Lowell directors are making progress if they now insist that as a prerequisite to any reorganization, the Boston & Maine must present a clean slate.

Another thing should be borne in mind. If any railroad proposition is to be submitted to the New Hampshire legislature, it should not be delayed as our blizzard season is practically over. Our trouble two years ago was that it was late in the session before a railroad bill was actually presented to the legislature. To repeat

EXTRACTS FROM FAMOUS INAUGURAL ADDRESSES

Offentimes in the past our chief executives have taken occasion to impart to the public words which have had a profound effect on the world. Following are a few extracts from historical inaugural addresses:

John Adams, Philadelphia, March 4, 1797.

We should be unfaithful to ourselves if we should ever lose sight of the danger to our liberties if anything partial or extraneous should infect the purity of our free, fair, virtuous and independent elections. If an election is to be determined by a majority of a single vote, and that can be procured by a party through artifice or corruption, the government may be the choice of a party for its ends, not of the nation for the national good.

Thomas Jefferson, Washington, March 4, 1805.

Who can limit the extent to which the federated principle may operate effectively? The larger our association the less will it be shaken by local passions; and in any view, it is not better that the opposite bank of the Mississippi should be settled by our own brethren and children than by strangers of another family? With which should we be most likely to live in harmony and friendly intercourse?

James Madison, March 4, 1812.

Already have the gallant exploits of our naval heroes proved to the world our inherent capacity to maintain our rights on one element. If the reputation of our arms has been thrown under clouds on the other, presaging flashes of heroic enterprise assure us that nothing is wanting to correspond. Triumphs there also but the discipline and habits which are in daily progress.

James Monroe, March 5, 1821.

From the change in the government of Spain and the negotiations now depending... it may be presumed that their differences will be settled on the terms proposed by the Colonies. Should the war in South America be continued, the United States, regarding occurrences, will always have it in their power to adopt such measures respecting it as their honor and interest may require.

Andrew Jackson, March 4, 1820.

The recent demonstration of public sentiment inscribes on the list of executive duties in characters too legible to be overlooked, the task of reform, which will require particularly the correction of those abuses that have brought the patronage of the Federal government into conflict with the freedom of elections, and the counteraction of those causes which have disturbed the rightful course of appointment and have placed or continued power in unfaithful or incompetent hands. In the performance of a task thus generally delineated I shall endeavor to select men whose diligence and talents will insure in their respective stations able that performance will be hazardous for any railroad bill.

Blanket the Horses

(From the Boston Post)
Winter is by no means over yet. Remember what the groundhog did on Caudenmas day? But by the appearance of a good many horses standing blanketed on our streets one would think that their drivers believed that spring was already here.

Most drivers will give their animals the protection of a blanket on a zero day, because they are reminded to do so by the nipping air. But the kind of weather we now have calls for just as much care for a warm and sweaty horse when he stops as did the colder days—more, because he sweats more freely and is thus more likely to be harmed if left uncovered.

There hardly exists a teamster who would willingly see his horses suffer. Those who seem hard-hearted merely need to be a nudged a bit.

Deadlier Than the Zeppelin

(From the New York World)
According to a statement made in the British House of Commons, while air-raiding since the beginning of the war has killed 137 persons in London, the motor-bus has killed 951. The increase of motor fatalities is due, of course, to the darkening of the city to bludge enemy air attacks, the effect of defending against war has been to augment the casualties of peace.

Davy Jones Rules the Waves

(From the Charleston, S. C., News and Courier)
John Bull used to have the largest merchant marine, but he has now yielded that distinction to Davy Jones.

The Reason for Many Successes

(From the Charleston News and Courier)
The Crown Prince is doing his best, but the trouble is that the French at Verdun always do just a little better.

Triggers in Place of Keys

(From the Republican Champion, New York, N. Y.)
With the Cubans squabbling over politics, the Mexicans fighting from Abraham Lincoln, March 4, 1861.

A disruption of the Federal union, heretofore only menaced, is now formally attempted. I hold that in contemplation of universal law and of the constitution the union of these states is perpetual. * * * Physically speaking, we cannot separate. We cannot remove our respective sections from each other nor build an impassable wall between them. * * * They cannot but remain face to face, and intercourse, either amicable or hostile, must continue between them. * * * Why should there not be a patient confidence in the ultimate justice of the people? Is there any better or equal hope in the world? * * * We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic cords of memory stretching from every battlefield and patriot grave to every living heart and hearthstone all over this broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union, when again touched as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature.

Ulysses S. Grant, March 4, 1869.

The country having just emerged from a great rebellion, many questions will come before it for settlement. * * * In meeting these it is desirable that they should be approached calmly, without prejudice, hate or sectional bias, remembering that the greatest good to the greatest number is the object to be attained. * * * A great debt has been contracted in securing to us and our posterity the Union. The payment of this * * * must be provided for.

Grover Cleveland, March 4, 1893.

Manifestly nothing is more vital to our supremacy as a nation and to the beneficent purposes of our Government than a sound and stable currency. * * * The verdict of our voters, which condemned the injustice of maintaining protection for protection's sake * * * leads us to a refusal of bounties and subsidies, which burden the labor and thrust of a portion of our citizens to aid ill-advised or unprofitable enterprises in which they have no concern. It leads also to a challenge of wild and reckless pension expenditure, which overleaps the bounds of grateful recognition of patriotic service. * * * The existence of immense aggregations of kindred enterprises and combinations of business interests formed for the purpose of limiting production and fixing prices is inconsistent with the fair field which ought to be opened to every independent activity. * * * To the extent that they can be reached and restrained by Federal power the general Government should relieve our citizens from their interference by extension and our sense of justice.

FUNERAL NOTICE.

The funeral of Sylvester Wright will be held at the Church of the Immaculate Conception Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock. Friends kindly omit flowers.

Will the Kaiser present Stone, Gronau, O'Gorman, La Follette, Chapp, Norris, Vandamm, Cummings, Kirby and Works, with the Iron Cross? They certainly handed their countrymen the double cross.

WASHINGTON SUFFERS FROM RAIN AND SLEET

Interesting Personal Gossip Gleaned at the National Capital.

(By F. W. Hartford)

Washington, March 4.—The weather at dear "old Portsmouth" is good enough for me after the record here this week. It has been rain and sleet night and day. The citizens and business men have been much concerned and when climate is mentioned they turn away.

Senator "Ben" Tillman showed some of his old time spirit and fire on Friday afternoon while the final bill was up. He charged the chair that it was only ten minutes before the senate was to vote and he had several amendments to propose. "I don't care how the chair rules or how the senate votes on this matter, but I demand action before the house arrives. I don't intend to have the bill beaten." Senator Tillman kept the gallery in an uproar as he shouted from time to time.

Hiram Noone of Peterborough and a party of friends have arrived and the former Democratic candidate for governor is right in the swim. He reserved a number of rooms at the St. James hotel and is entertaining many prominent politicians. Mr. Noone has been provided with special tickets to witness the inaugural ceremonies.

Harold Bennett and wife, with Mr. Bennett's father are leaving for Miami, Florida, after the inaugural. They are at the Dewey.

It was a rare treat for the New Hampshire visitors to be in the senate and house galleries during Friday evening and Saturday when the important bills were being debated. Many notables were in the gallery and on the floor.

The civil force at the navy yards have some good friends in Washington and when the bill carrying the increase for department clerks was agreed to, it occurred to friends that all naval stations should be included, and later the amendment was agreed to.

I met Captain P. B. Bartlett, U. S. N., at the capital on Friday night and he asked for all the men at the yard. Said he "I want to go back to Portsmouth some day; you have some of the best mechanics in the country." Captain Bartlett is now stationed at League Island.

To escape the bad weather, Rear Admiral Francis H. Delano, U. S. N., has headed further south.

George Q. Putney of the Dewey has a crowded house and has turned away many for the immigration. Mrs. Putney and daughter, Gladys, give all a most cordial welcome and they have many New Hampshire friends here.

Forecast for Portsmouth and vicinity—Snow, probably heavy, Monday; Tuesday clearing and colder; strong northeast winds, becoming northwest.

"SUCKER" MAKES $40, THEN TELLS POLICE

Los Angeles, March 5.—Meeting two affable strangers, who told him how he could win big money on horse races, William Halloway, of Bismarck, Ark., reluctantly put up $2. The strangers soon returned to him with $10 winnings and suggested that he put up a big bet. Halloway, however, not so gullible as he had been judged, walked blithely away and then reported the matter to the police.

FIGHTING ON A WIDE FRONT

(Special to The Herald)

Paris, March 5.—Heavy assaults delivered on a wide front were repulsed by the French last night on the Verdun. The Germans attacked over a two-mile front near Carrières wood and Bezemois after first subjecting French trenches to a terrific cannonade. Their lines were subjected to a heavy fire and the Tenthiole forces suffered heavy losses.

DEWEY HAD GREAT REGARD FOR DANIELS

Said He Was the Best Secretary of the Navy in 62 Years.

(By F. W. HARTFORD)

Washington, March 5.—Secretary Josephus Daniels is proving daily his capacity is equal to any secretary of the navy in years to handle that department and that the naval officers without regard to state or station acknowledge it. The Herald has always stood firm in his defense because it believed he was being unjustly attacked. The Herald was aware that Mr. Daniels had refused to bow to great interests and that an attempt was being made to discredit him. Time will prove that he has been a most efficient and capable head. The following presented to the Senate was listened to with much interest and shows how the secretary was regarded by the late Admiral Dewey:

"1601 K. Street, Feb. 10, 1917.
"Hon. Lee S. Overman, U. S. Senator from North Carolina.

"Dear Senator—I am sending you a copy of the resolutions adopted by the General Assembly of North Carolina expressing the appreciation of the people of that Commonwealth of the services rendered to his country by my husband, George Dewey, the Admiral of the Navy."

"I am grateful for this tribute kindly sent by the secretary of state of North Carolina. My husband had a warm spot in his heart for North Carolinians, particularly for Hon. James C. Dobbin, who was Secretary of the Navy when he entered the Naval Academy, and for the present Secretary of the Navy, Hon. Josephus Daniels, under whose administration he rendered his last service to the Navy and to his country.

"In the following letter written in 1913, the admiral expressed his estimate of Mr. Dobbin as Secretary of the Navy:
"Admiral of the Navy,
"Navy Department, March 12, 1913.
"Dear Mr. Secretary—Referring to our conversation of this morning, I said at that time, that I was appointed an acting midshipman in the Navy in September, 1834, by the Hon. J. C. Dobbin, Secretary of the Navy, a resident of North Carolina. During his administration of the Navy Department we built 13 of the finest ships of their class that there were in the world: Six frigates of the Wabash class, six sloops of the Hartford class, and six third-class sloops of the Trogus class. In my opinion, Mr. Dobbin was one of the ablest Secretaries of the Navy the country ever had.

"Faithfully yours,
"GEORGE DEWEY."
"I wish you, and the people of the country also, to know that my husband felt for the present Secretary of the Navy, Hon. Josephus Daniels, a sincere affection. Only a short time ago the admiral said, 'I have been in the Navy 62 years, and have served under many Secretaries of the Navy, but Secretary Daniels is the best secretary we have ever had, and has done more for the Navy than any other. I am amazed by his knowledge of technical matters. He has studied profoundly, and his opinion is founded on close observation."

"Will you express my profound thanks to the General Assembly of North Carolina? I am, Senator,
"Very truly,
"MILDRED McLEAN DEWEY."

NAVY NOTES

Trying to Fill Reserve Ranks

A call for 10,000 men for the navy reserve of men who have seen previous navy or merchant marine service has just been received by the heads of recruiting offices in Washington. This call is urgent, and in addition to the 23,000 men the navy is now trying to get.

A real model of a battleship, the famous Oregon, was put on exhibition in a luncheon window in Washington and attracted large crowds. The navy department consented to exhibit this model because of the urgency of the situation. Models are usually kept away from public scrutiny because it makes it so easy for an enemy eye to study the lines of the ship. The Oregon, however, is famous. It is the ship that came around Cape Horn to figure in the battle of Santiago.

The navy department has just shipped to Chicago a big consignment of models to be used to stir up recruiting. The risk of exposing secret features of the latest ships however, would not be taken. These models are carefully guarded in Washington.

Overtime Increase

The navy department has been asked by Congressman George Holden Tinkham in behalf of the Boston branch of the National Association of United States Civil Service Employees, to change the status of the clerks of the Boston navy yard so that they may receive the same rate of compensation for overtime work as other workmen at the yard.

Closed Recruiting Office.

Chief Yeoman Clarence Jackson, Chief Boatwain's Mate C. W. Hutchinson, Chief Gunner's Mate Clifford Gaynard and Pharmacist's Mate Albert Cheatham, all of the U. S. S. North Carolina, who have been conducting a recruiting office for the navy at Somersworth, have closed the office there and will go into the northern part of the state.

Important Meeting.

The Navy Yard Improvement Association has called a meeting for Wednesday night at 8 o'clock in U. V. U. hall and the officials say its going to be an important one for the organization.

Will Speed Up Work

Secretary Daniels announced tonight that the navy department would employ immediately the emergency and provided by congress for speeding up warship construction and acquiring submarines, submarine chasers and other craft, and if necessary would use the authority granted to commander private plans. The principal private shipbuilders of the country will be called into conference this week.

"Delays will not be permitted to stand in the way of carrying out the clear intent of congress says a statement by the secretary. 'I will be quick to recommend taking over any plants, if it is essential to do so in order to secure the building of new ships in double quick time. We will undoubtedly secure co-operation in putting an end to delays that have impeded the construction of formerly authorized programs.'

As finally passed, the naval appropriation bill carried $517,389,474, which makes a total of $1,131,889,895 provided for the navy in the last four years.

BILL TO REVISE MILITARY LAWS OF STATE DUE

Governor Keyes Has Measure To Be Introduced Into Legislature.

Concord, March 4.—Governor Keyes expects to have the bill providing a comprehensive revision of the military laws of the state ready to present to the legislature this week. The governor has been working on the bill with Adjutant General Howard and other officers of the regiment for the last week and it is practically ready. The bill comprises a compilation of the existing laws applicable to present conditions of the militia, with the obsolete provisions eliminated and additions to meet the new requirements laid down by congress and the war department.

The governor has had a bill on his desk for two weeks or more to send to the legislature, if quick action should be necessary to bring about mobilization of the state troops. In the event of hostilities with Germany, today the governor has an appointment to meet an official of the navy department, who is coming to New Hampshire on official business connected with the state. The governor is taking a great interest in all of the preparedness moves by the national administration and has been impatient with the apparently dilly-dallying methods in Washington, as evidenced by the three weeks and more which elapsed before he received a reply from the war department acknowledging the offer of a regiment of soldiers, the response then being merely a formal expression of thanks for the offer.

The military bill and the expected railroad reorganization bill, which the governor has been informed may be offered will add to the interest of the coming week's doings. The house will have a field day of equal suffrage, Wednesday when the Gilson bill, exactly similar to the Collins bill, defeated in the senate a few weeks ago, is a second order. There has been a feeling that the house might pass the bill along to the senate for another vote but the method of bombarding the members, including some who have gone on record for the bill by letters and follow-up letters, has taxed the patience of a number so that they were saying last week they were undecided whether or not to vote for the bill. There will be no such picturesque flops as was the case when the bill came up in the senate but the vote will be watched with surpassing interest, nevertheless.

Chairman Hook of the liquor laws committee expects to report the Lewis bill this week. A hearing is set for Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, at which the opponents will be given opportunity to respond to the arguments advanced at the public hearing last week in Representatives' hall. Chairman Hook said it was possible that the proponents of the bill might ask for further hearing, and the committees will grant the time, if asked; but it is a foregone conclusion that the talkers on either side will simply be talking against time or for the sake of hearing themselves talk, as the members have, without much likelihood of change, made up their minds how they intend to vote.

STATE WILL GET THE FIGUREHEAD FROM NAVY YARD

Secretary Orders Souvenir From Battleship Sent to Concord.

Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels has notified Governor Henry W. Keyes that his request for the bronze figurehead formerly on the bow of the battleship New Hampshire has been granted and the figurehead will be sent from the Portsmouth navy yard to Concord.

What disposition will be made of the big bronze eagle has not been definitely decided, Governor Keyes said recently. Other states have set up the figureheads in the state house yards and it is possible that the same disposition may be made of this one. The figurehead is a big bronze eagle measuring 13 feet from tip to tip of the wings and weighing 3200 pounds. It has been at the Portsmouth navy yard since it was removed from the battleship a few years ago in accordance with the removal of all figureheads and Governor Keyes fearing something might happen to it, recently requested it be turned over to the state.

NEW PLANS FOR B. & M. BEING CONSIDERED

WAY BEING PAVED FOR REORGANIZATION OF ROAD NOW IN RECEIVERSHIP

Boston, March 4.—Reorganization plans for the Boston & Maine Railroad are again about to go forward. During the past week representatives of the leased lines have reached a working agreement on a draft of a tentative plan, to which Henry B. Day, a Boston & Maine director, and Federal trustee, has also assented. This agreement was the result of weeks of negotiations and of successive conferences, the last general conference of the leased lines committee having been held on Tuesday.

The next steps will be to put the plan before the directors of the Boston & Maine and the various leased lines for their assent and to seek to secure, from the Legislature of New Hampshire, now in session, legislation authorizing reorganization under the new plan in that state.

Although the details of the plan are not yet made public, it is officially stated that it will accord with the enabling legislation previously enacted in Maine and Massachusetts and that no new laws are needed in those states. The plan is the fruit primarily not of Boston & Maine, but of leased line effort and the draft is the work of attorneys George F. Morris of Lancaster, N. H., representing the Concord & Montreal, and Arthur A. Ballantine of Boston, who has been associated with Boyd B. Jones in much of the receiver ship proceedings.

Will Take Up Reorganization

It was the fact of the receivership that deterred the Boston & Maine directors from taking any formal action looking toward reorganization since last August. As soon, however, as the decree making the receivership permanent is drafted and is signed by Judge Morton, the directors will hold themselves free to pick up the work laid aside for more than half a year.

Mr. Day, although he has attended various conferences of the leased lines reorganization committee and has been consulted by its members and its attorneys by telephone and in person, has been acting unofficially and as an individual only.

To the others, he has insisted that his participation in the negotiations did not imply the approval of the directors or its executive committee, nor even that of the Federal trustees. What actual influence his approval of the

BRITISH DRIVE ON BOTH WINGS

Attacks Gain More Ground in Somme and Amre Regions.

London, March 5.—Again the British have advanced their front on the right and left wings in the Somme and Amre regions of France. On the left flank east of Gommecourt, the Germans gave up ground over a front of two miles to an average depth of 1,200 yards, while on the right flank, east of Bouchevignes, an attack gave the British a gain on a front of 1,200 yards and 173 prisoners, according to the London war office. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the Germans in several counter attacks.

The recent ceiling of ground by the Germans in the Amre and Somme regions evidently was not carried out for strategic reasons, but because of necessity, according to a staff correspondent of the Associated Press. A visit to various points of the line showed that the guns of the British had torn up trenches and communication trenches and searched out thoroughly the ground on a wide area behind the German lines, where many hundreds of dead were found later.

In the Meuse district, the Germans near the Elx, in an attack preceded by a heavy bombardment, succeeded in entering French trenches, but were driven out in a counter attack. Reciprocal bombardments, especially severe east of the Meuse in the Bole Cauceres sector, have taken place. With the important towns of Hamadan already in their possession, the Russians are keeping up their offensive against the Turks in Persia. Eighty miles northwest of Hamadan they have captured the villages of Bijar and Khamikaji.

TWELVE SENATORS BLOCK BILL TO ARM SHIPS

Talked All Night Until Noon, Preventing the Taking of Vote Before Congress Automatically Adjourned

Washington, Sunday.—Talking against time, less than a dozen Senators today succeeded in preventing a vote on the armed neutrality measure in the Senate, and succeeded in preventing its passage. The Senate and House of Representatives of the sixty-fourth Congress went out of existence at noon by Congressional adjournment, and were automatically adjourned, and no action was taken. Appeals to their patriotism and to their sense of the danger of the nation that the failure to pass the measure might bring about all failed to move this pacifist clique from the stand they had taken.

With the exception of this small group, small in number, but with power to do great mischief, the Senate took a stand which would have supported the President and declared to the world that the American flag still stands for the protection of all beneath it. The men, who by their filibustering tactics, succeeded in killing the bill which was designed to give the President power and authority to protect American rights and lives on the high seas, are: La Follette, republican of Wisconsin; O'Gorman, democrat of New York; Norris, republican of Nebraska; Works, republican of California; Chapp, republican of Minnesota; Vardaman, democrat of Mississippi; Kirby, democrat of Arkansas; Gronna, republican of North Dakota; Stone, republican of Missouri, chairman of the foreign relations committee; and Cummins, republican of Iowa.

Manifesto is Signed

To meet the efforts of the filibuster, which at midnight gave signs of probable success, and which was stated successful, the majority of the Senators took the unprecedented course of preparing a manifesto to be given to the people declaring that though they were deprived of the right to vote for the measure that they stand solidly back of the President in his determination to uphold American rights and honor. The text of the manifesto follows:—

"The undersigned, United States Senators, favor the passage of Senate Bill 3322, to authorize the President of the United States to arm American merchant ships.

"A similar bill already has passed the House of Representatives by a vote of 403 to 13.

"Under the rules of the Senate, allowing unlimited debate, it now appears to be impossible to obtain a vote prior to noon, March 4, 1917, when the session of Congress expires.

"We desire the statement in the record to establish the fact that the Senate favors the legislation and would pass it if a vote could be obtained."

Twelve Did Not Sign

The manifesto was entered in the record of the Senate at 3:29 a. m., when nearly eighty members of the body had signed it. In putting it into the record Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska said that there were only twelve Senators who had refused to sign it, which showed that an overwhelming majority was for the President's policy, though deprived of an opportunity to vote for the measure by the course of the obstructionists in preventing a roll call.

Bill Talked to Death

During the night Senators opposed to the arming of merchant ships continued their filibustering, taking every subject under the sun to talk about rather than allow the bill to come to a vote, which they were assured would be certain to pass by a large majority. The Agricultural bill was talked about. Senators who are going back to private life took the opportunity to deliver rages. Senator Stone talked against the bill for four hours, and his opposition to the bill was all the more marked at the House of the Missouri State Legislature. Stone's state, had adopted; while the debate had barely begun, a resolution urging the Missouri delegation in Congress to support the President. Senator Hitchcock asked unanimous consent to put a fifteen-minute limit on speeches, but Senators Cummins, Norris, and Gronna blocked this. Senator Norris saying:

"Would Kill the Bill"

"I am perfectly frank to say that I would kill this bill if I could."

Half a dozen Senators added their views to the debate. Senator Hardwick finally arising to denounce with bitter words these threatening to defeat the measure, and declaring it should be passed "to keep the peace, support the President and let the German government know that we will not submit to murder on the high seas."

It was ten o'clock when Senator Cummins got his chance to deliver a long speech, declaring that his objections to the bill were based on the unconstitutionality of Congress delegating its war making powers to the President.

Asks for "New Watchword"

"The watchword of the time should be changed a little," he said. "It should be 'Stand by the government' instead of 'Stand by the President' or 'Stand by Congress.' He declared he was not ready to go to war over Americans killed aboard British munitions vessels and that he was opposed to vesting extraordinary powers in the President, which he characterized as "Kaiserling the United States."

The debate continued with no prospect of any suggestion of compromise being effective, despite the extraordinary efforts of leaders on both sides of the Senate. It was when it looked as though the pacifist might succeed in preventing a vote by noon today that it was decided to issue a manifesto, signed by practically the entire Senate, to show the people that he Senate outside the tiny group of pacifists stood behind the President.

President May Act Without Calling Session

When the President went before Congress to ask it to give him specific authority he declared in his address:—"No doubt I already possess that authority without special warrant by law by the plain indications of my constitutional duties and powers." He added that he preferred in the present circumstances not to act upon general implications.

Since the navy already has made preparations to arm American merchant vessels and has only awaited the signal from the President to begin, it is the opinion of some administration officials that the President may decide to carry out that policy even if Congress does not act. The manifesto read in the Senate record shows that Congress would give him that authority if some of the pacifist clique of whom retire to private life with the end of Congress today, had not worked to prevent a vote.

President Wilson stayed up until midnight and kept in close touch with the situation in the Senate. At about one o'clock the Naval Appropriation bill was sent to him, final action on that being taken when the Senate agreed to the conference report previously accepted by the House.

While the bill was bitterly attacked by Senator Stone, who holds the responsibility of being chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, men like Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, who has been one of the bitterest of the President's critics, rallied with the other republican leaders to the support of the bill.

SELF-DEFENSE TO BE CLAIMED IN WHITE CASE

ACCUSED MAN MUCH AFFECTED BY DEATH OF WELCH AT OSSISPEE

Mountainview, N. H., March 4.—Curlew County officials are awaiting an autopsy on the body of William Welch, before bringing a new charge against Oscar White, aged 70, who is accused of having shot Welch in White's house on Ossipee Mountain. White is held in $1000 bail on charge of assault with intent to murder.

The autopsy will be held tomorrow in charge of Medical Referee B. Frank Howe of North Conway.

White did not hear of Welch's death until Saturday morning and was much affected.

White claims he fired at Welch in self-defense.

The gun has been taken as an exhibit in the case. One Wiggin, who was at the house, and Dr. E. W. Hodsdon, first Selectman, who took active part in the Small murder case, will be the principal witnesses. Dr. Hodsdon will be the star witness for the defense.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

IT'S GRANDMOTHER'S RECIPE TO BRING BACK COLOR AND LUSTRE TO HAIR

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

HIPPODROME'S SENSATIONAL SUCCESS

The Hippodrome continues to attract the greatest attention among the big things in town, as Charles Dillingham's gorgeous pageant "The Big Show" in its present completeness is conceded to be the most popular of the ever presented at this huge and interesting playhouse. Realizing that the public is enjoying the novelty of seeing her under the water for the first time Annette Kellerman will completely alter her program this coming week, and during most of the time allotted to her sensational aquatic spectacle "The Queen of the Mermaids" she will remain submerged. The startling announcement is made that she will swim under the water for fourteen minutes in all, coming to the surface only to perform her graceful and daring dives which punctuate the remarkable performance of this diving Venus. The large glass front tanks in use at the Hippodrome make this under-the-sea exhibition possible for the first time and no feature of this varied and colossal bill of novelties seem to be more enjoyed than that contained in the enchanted waterfalls.

With interest in ice skating now at its very height "The Merry Doll" with its imported and domestic skating beauties including Ellen Dallerup, Katie Schmidt, Kathleen Pope, Hilda Rueckert, and the Nash Twins, form a most attractive climax to this congress of achievements. Matinees are given daily.

New York, March 4.—The resounding of the willow against the feather and the wild ravings of the teeming bands as the winning run filters across the platter couple with the thousand and one thrills provided for the bugs during the summer months, unite to make baseball our greatest national game.

But the good of stove league does its hurt. The busy scribes delve into into record and dig up yarns which keep the fans from starving to death for baseball dope while frosty blasts are blowing through the bleachers. All baseball writers contribute a log or two to the stove fire which burns bright an warm from Turkey day until the baseballing stars go to the Southland.

He compares the shortstops of today with the shortstopper of five or ten years ago and the bugs eat up the dope and he also digs up pitching records and baserunning records and his yarns take the place of the box totals.

Without winter league chatter the baseball an would be a rather lonesome individual and without the dope of comparing the stars of today with the idols of yesterday, the scribe also would find it hard to do his share.

When the major leagues held their schedule meetings here a short time ago it was evidently expected that the members of the rules committee would get together and make a few alterations in the baseball code as it stands today.

But the rules committee did nothing of the kind. The wise old heads who are in control of baseball are satisfied with the rules and for obvious reasons.

Suppose measures should be taken to increase hitting, make it tougher for the pitcher to retire the batsman and handicap the base runners. Suppose steps to make the work of the fielders more flashy were agreed upon by the baseball doctors an dithe whole baseball code be generally shaken up. Would the game profit by it in the end?

We do not believe it would. And here is the reason as we see it. Baseball has stood for years as the most popular of all sports. It has become firmly established in the hearts of the sport loving public because it is being offered from year to year as a staple attraction.

The game as it is served up to the public today has suffered few alterations in the past ten year and to this fact it owes much of its success. Almost every other branch of sport has been altered.

Frequent changes in the rules and consequent shifting of conditions have kept such sports from growing. But the game of baseball has stood out a perfected game in itself, and the solons of the pastime can see no reason for changing the order of things.

Should radical changes be made in the rules the favorite winter pastime of comparing players and their records would fade out in a short time and it would take years before it could be restored.

Imagine a scribble!!!!

Imagine a scribe attempting to compare a player who has established records five or ten year ago with one of our present day stars if the rules of today were vastly different. It simply could not be done, for the records of the two players would be made under different rules and different conditions, and there would be no loophole for the comparison.

And don't think for a moment that that the winter league dope doesn't hold a high place in the stimulation of the fans. Baseball's solons know it and they relize the advantage of it. The good old dope has helped to make baseball a national institution.

So the passing up of many suggestions that have been made from time to time in altering the pitching, batting and base running rules has been a wise move on the part of the rules committee, and as one prominent baseball man said recently:

"The game is satisfactory as it is today because it is no easy matter to get a runner around the bases and the fans realize that the making of a run means hard work. I wouldn't undermine the foundation of the game by tampering with the rules, for the people are satisfied and baseball owes its popularity largely to the fact that it is built on a solid and lasting foundation."

New York, March 3.—Consistent pitching and steady fielding enabled the Boston Braves to keep in the pennant hunt in the National league last season.

They were in the race from start to finish and they never fell below fourth place. Finishing a good third only one and one half games behind the Phillies in second place, those Braves made themselves felt, and their chances this year look as good and better.

than most rival clubs, with the exception of the Giants.

Stronger hitting is what George Stallings' boys need to put them very much in the fight for the Pomeroy cup this summer. If they can brush up their batting strength they will be dangerous rivals of the Giants, or at least it appears so from an early angle.

While figures don't tell everything, they come as close as is possible to come in showing the strong points and weaknesses of a ball club, and the National league pitching records show that Stallings' hurlers generally had something on the ball.

The regulars of the Braves' staff ranked between eighth and twenty-third places in the column which records the effectiveness of pitchers. Nehf, Tyler, Allen, Ragan, and Rudolph hold down the eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth places in the pitching records while the remaining hurlers are strung out to 23d place which is held by Ed Thuebach. And the Stallings sharpshooting staff remains intact, with the prospects of another good year.

In fielding, the Braves of 1916 head the column with a team percentage of .957. They were charged with 212 misplays in 158 games. But their baserunning was very ordinary and in batting they were last with a team average of .234.

So the weakness of the Braves apparently lies in their attack with the budgeons, and it is in this department that George Stallings will spend the most time drilling his warriors during the spring training grind. Better batting will be certain to make the Boston team a very dangerous outfit.

Johnny Evers' determination to get back into the game and do everything in his power to stick there day in and day out has already been announced. He has improved in health during the winter and if he is successful in keeping his health he will be a wonderful help to Boston.

Counting Evers in the game and he will be in there when the season opens, the infield may be much the same as that with which Stallings finished the 1916 season. Knottch will hold down the initial sack, with Evers on second, Maranville at short and Smith at third. Several recruit infielders will get tryouts and Egan and Fitzpatrick of last year's team will be in uniform again.

Stallings drafted Johnny Rawlings a shortstop from Toledo, and Bill Massey, who played both second and short last season for the Mobile club of the Southern association. Neither player appears to have the makings of a heavy hitter in the big show, but both are flashy fielders.

With Blackburn, Cowdy and Truesdell forming the regular windup crew and Rizo and Willard McGraw fighting for places, the Braves are pretty well fixed with catching talent. Blackburn hit well and showed real class in handling the pitchers and pegging to the bases during the latter part of last season and will probably be first catcher with the Braves this year.

Davis and Crum are the only new pitching recruits listed on the roster of the Braves which was sent out recently by the management, and it is apparent that Stallings is pretty well satisfied with his hurling staff.

The outfield candidates promise to put up the liveliest scrap for positions that a team of Boston Braves has with. His nine outfielders and this will mean that at least five of them needed for a number of years. Stallings will have to be weeded out by the time for trimming player rosters to 22 men. The outfield candidates are Sherwood Magee, Ed Collins, Joe Connolly, Larry Chapelle, Fred Bailey, Joe Wilhoit, Fred Snodgrass, Joe Kelley and Geo. Twombly.

Chapelle and Joe Kelley appear to be the scrappiest candidates for a regular job, but with such a herd of fly chasers fighting for berths, Stallings will have his hands full weeding 'em out.

When the outfield is finally selected, Stallings will have a well balanced club and one that is practically certain to be a big factor in the National league race.

ROTARY CLUB ADOPTS GIRL MUSIC PRODIGY

Chicago, March 3.—Violet Bourne, a fifteen-year-old musical prodigy, has been adopted as a protegee by the Chicago Rotary Club and incidentally by 36,000 Rotarians belonging to various clubs over the country, of which the Chicago club is the parent organization.

Little Miss Bourne attracted attention when she was nine years old by her masterly playing of the piano and won high praise from Teresa Carreno and Fritz Kreisler.

"You have a wonderful tone, a great gift. God bless you," said Mme. Carreno, after listening to her playing of the difficult Mozart D Minor Concerto.

Later Miss Bourne acquitted herself creditably when she appeared as soloist with the Seattle Symphony Orchestra and on the same program with Maggie Teyte.

The Rotary Club will stand sponsor for the girl's musical education and in advancing her in every way possible.

MUNITIONS CONTRACTS END MARCH 31

BRITISH NOTIFY AMERICAN MAKERS ENGLAND NO LONGER NEEDS TO IMPORT THE MATERIALS OF WAR.

Philadelphia, March 4.—Munitions makers in this country have been notified by the British Government that all contracts for the manufacture of shells and other munitions must be completed by March 31, and that on that date all contracts in existence for these materials will lapse.

Anticipating the extension of the German submarine blockade, and the increasing difficulty of sending material across the water, the English Government during the last year has brought its production of munitions to a point where it is no longer necessary to import them.

The three plants most affected in this city are the Baldwin Locomotive Works, the Eddystone Ammunition Company, controlled by Baldwins, and the Midvale Steel Company. These corporations have been actively engaged in the manufacture of shells for the Allies.

That this would be done by the British has been known in this country for six months, and the big plants have been preparing to put their shell-making machinery to other uses.

According to one of the inspectors there are 61 firms in the Philadelphia district, which includes this city, Baltimore, Washington and Richmond, Va., making supplies for the British Government. Less than a dozen are affected by the order.

Most of the contracts, except one held by the American Locomotive Company, were due to end this month. Very few of the contractors will be unable to finish their contract in the specified time and the loss will be small, the inspector said.

Besides shells, the contracts for shoes, clothing and rifles have been lessening in volume for several months. The Remington Arms Company at Eddystone will not feel the let down for some time, as its contracts have a long time to go. This company

Rural New Hampshire Not Declining.

(From the Manchester Mirror)

In a recent address before the Milford Woman's club Mr. Rosecrans W. Pillsbury called attention to the decrease in population in the rural towns of New Hampshire, and cited the population in 44 such towns in 1840 and the population of the same towns in 1910, by inference changing the great reduction in the number of inhabitants in those and other rural towns to the administration of state affairs. He also asserted that there has been a great decline in the intellectual greatness of New Hampshire learned men as noted leaders in national affairs, and said this was due to the fact that "our business and politics are controlled by a very few, causing mental stagnation and moral decadence." He also pointed out that in 1850 we had in New Hampshire 2,251,438 acres of improved farm lands which had decreased in 1910 to 929,185 acres. Such a picture of New Hampshire is not an attractive one to hold up before the people, within or outside the state, and when this alleged condition is charged up to the administration of state affairs it is still more misleading.

The falling off in the population in rural towns is no greater in New Hampshire than in towns similarly located in all the New England states. There are lands in every rural town in New England that were operated as farms in 1840 under the methods of farming and style of living then in vogue, that are worthless for such purposes today. They have grown up to wood and timber and the farm buildings long ago gone to decay. The large families of children found in nearly every household in rural New England in 1840 are not found today in the households still maintained, with only rare exceptions, in many instances the abandonment of these lands for farming purposes was evidence of progress on the part of the owners rather than decline, for the development of the rich and fertile soil of the Great West, capable of being operated by machinery, brought an end to profitable farming, or even getting a living upon many of the rocky hillside farms of New England. They may have served their purpose for farming in those early days but would be worth less under present day conditions existing in the country.

In citing these facts we do not wish to be understood as throwing any obstacle in the way of the development of such farms as can be operated by present day farm machinery. It was not the abandonment of such farms that was the sole cause of the decline in rural population in the towns cited. This class of farms may have been included in the abandoned lands between 1850 and 1870 but there has been a great reoccupation of such farms in the last 25 years. There is also increased activity in the operation of farms of this class throughout New England, whether ever abandoned or not. The reaction towards such farm lands has been remarkable, as is apparent to every person traveling about the rural sections of New England and New Hampshire in particular. Mr. Pillsbury said:

"Agriculture must be promoted by the state and our abandoned farms and country districts repopulated." "That is just what is being done in New Hampshire perhaps, to a greater extent than in any other New England state. Our good farms are being improved as never before in the history of the state, as anyone can see who is looking for something to commend rather than something to condemn. There is no sense in making a comparison between rural population and improved farm lands 50 years ago and now, for conditions throughout the country have entirely changed. Good farmers and good farming in 1840 were very different matters from good farmers and good farms at the present time. We all deplore the decadence, as it is called, of rural towns, but it is a change due much more to natural conditions than to any administration of public affairs.

MENTAL HABITS OF DEBT Summary of the Illusions That Are Often Employed by the Spend-thrift.

These are mental habits of debt. William H. Hamby says in the Saturday Evening Post.

1. An overestimate of income. In mild cases this consists in counting the maximum. If a man is working at $3 a day, he multiplies 20 working days in the month by three, without any allowance for sickness, accident, bad weather, or nonemployment. If he is in business he counts the next month on a par with his best month in the past; if in a profession he figures the largest possible number of clients. In the more exaggerated type of delirium he expects unexpected good luck to add to his regular income.

2. An underestimate of expenses. A tendency to think of the debts separately—and to count them as extraordinary emergencies that won't happen next month.

3. Thinking that if you can afford a thing that costs $20 you can afford a better quality that costs only $5 more—the elasticity of optimism.

4. Considering what we want as absolute necessities that must be supplied at once; but what our creditors want as luxuries to be looked after in 60 or 90 days—or when we get around to it.

5. Thinking more about what we owe our station in life than what we owe our tradesmen. It is easy for the debt-ridden mind to convince itself that good clothes, a fine variety of good conveniences and a nice house are the wisest sort of investments—even off the other fellow's money.

6. A feeling—when not pushed by creditors—that debt is rather a trivial matter. "Oh, everybody runs accounts. They know I'm good for it. Why worry?" An impression that it is much better to be generous and jolly than prompt and just.

7. In thinking that living in the future means living off the future. There is as much difference between hoping for tomorrow and borrowing from tomorrow as there is between raising a crop and mortgaging the farm.

He Cares for "Scoundrugs."
A. G. Shoup, superintendent of the Alaska Pioneers' home at Sitka, has arrived at Seattle, says the Post-Intelligencer of that city.

"This 'scoundrugs' home was established by the territory in 1913," said Mr. Shoup, "and we now have sixty-five inmates, most of them old fellows, who have pioneered it in almost every district of Alaska."

"The territory established this home for the purpose of caring for the old 'scoundrugs' and the Sitka institution is really a haven for these old fellows, who have become incapacitated from further pursuing the golden rule. The average of these sixty-five inmates is sixty-eight years, and among them we have several who have been prospecting in Alaska for forty years."

"In addition to caring for the inmates of this home the territory also has a pension system which cares for the needs of a number of others who are not altogether helpless, as well as of the widows and needy women."

Daylight Law Cuts Gasbills.
The manager of the Glasgow gas works in Scotland has issued a statement showing the effect of the new daylight bill upon the gas consumption of that city. Last year, the consumption of gas from six o'clock until midnight for three weeks amounted to 124,050,000 cubic feet. It was 101,127,000 this year for the same period—a saving of 20,000,000 cubic feet. "This means an average saving of nearly a million feet each evening. There is an increase of over 12,000,000 cubic feet during the remaining 18 hours of the day, due to the great demand for gas for industrial purposes—chiefly from the government—to meet the demands of war."

DOG FULL OF TRICKS

BUT THIS PUP IS AN ELECTRICAL AFFAIR.

Invented by John Hays Hammond and B. F. Meister—Controlled by Light Rays It Will Do Many Interesting Things.

In the Popular Science Monthly appears an interesting article by B. F. Meister, describing the famous electric dog which was invented by the author in collaboration with John Hays Hammond, Jr. In speaking of the tricks of his mechanical pet, the writer says:

"The electric dog, which John Hays Hammond, Jr., and I designed, has no tail to wag and no voice to bark with, but he can follow a person about in a most surprising way. "Like the sunflower that follows the sun in its path across the heavens, my first apparatus was capable of turning itself only to face the object that stimulated it. But a great difficulty had to be overcome. The stimulus was light, and sometimes the dog saw too much light, so that he behaved occasionally in an astonishingly erratic manner."

"Just how grave a difficulty this disobedience really is, was illustrated by an amusing incident during a demonstration at a Chicago theater."

"The dog was ready to spring into action, but when the stage was lighted, instead of obeying the flashlight held in my hands, the dog fastened on paying attention to a very alluring but not thickly clothed young woman pointed on the scenery near by. It seems that the reflected light from the painting was sufficiently brilliant to compete with the flashlight and to cause the dog to creep to this latter attraction with a directness which was almost uncanny."

"In all practical intents and purposes, the electrical dog is a deat dog until excited by an external light ray—usually a pocket flashlight, held in the hand. Fastened to the front of a squat, oblong box on three rollerlike wheels, are two great lenses, the eyes through which the dog receives his intelligence. Behind the lenses are two extremely sensitive cells containing the black, waxlike selenium. A peculiarity of selenium is that it is sensitive only to light rays; or, to put the facts a little more technically selenium is a nonconductor of electric currents until it is struck by light, when it becomes a conductor. Located behind the selenium eyes is an arrangement of relays, batteries, magnets and a motor. When a beam of light strikes one of the selenium cells, it causes a relay to be operated which, in turn, causes current to flow through one of the magnets controlling the steering wheel. The driving motor starts and the dog is under way. Shift the light so it strikes the other selenium eye and the dog moves in the other direction. In other words, in whichever direction the light travels there also will the dog go. By reversing a switch on the outside of the box, the dog can be made to back away from the light. Illuminating both cells equally causes the dog to move in a straight line."

VAST WEALTH OF ABYSSINIA

Country Has Remarkable Agricultural Resources and Is Developing Rapidly Under Native Rulers.

Julzere Zeodila, daughter of the late Menelik, has been proclaimed empress of Abyssinia, says the Christian Herald. She is forty years old. The empress succeeds Emperor Lidl Jemssu, who has been deposed. Abyssinia is one of the most interesting nations of the earth. It is the Switzerland of Africa. It is one-third larger than Great Britain. It occupies the mountainous regions of the valley of the Upper Nile, extending to the lower end of the Red Sea and over the watershed toward the Indian ocean. The land is fertile, yielding the products of all climates, some of them three crops a year. Bananas, dates, sugar, cotton, grapes, oranges, lemons and coffee all flourish, and on the tablelands hay, oats and barley are cultivated. Abyssinia is the only independent native state in Africa. It has fine public improvements and conveniences of civilized living. Abyssinia is the Ethiopia of ancient history.

Brown-Tail Moth Gone.

Success seems to have attended the efforts to exterminate the brown-tail moth, which has for years been the object of a warfare by the United States government as well as the states which have been ravaged by this pest. Light-houses along the coast of Connecticut and Long Island have been examined, but no migrating moths have been found. Fewer moths have been found on trains coming from infested regions during the season when the moths are flying than in any previous year. Hence this serious pest is believed not to be spreading, if indeed not actually in its decline.

New and Novel Device.

A big American steel company has adopted a novel device for unloading pig-iron from the holds of freight vessels. In place of stevedores, the company uses powerful magnets each of which has a lifting power of 4,000 pounds. Three such magnets were recently used in unloading a vessel, and made a record of unloading 4,000,000 pounds in ten hours, at a cost of $100. This represents a saving of $500, it is said, over the cost of handling by longshoremen.

ADVANCE SPRING STYLES

Individuality is the key-note of the Spring modes. The diversity of styles, the many clever color combinations, give ample choice for individual selection. Our stock embraces all that is new and artistic, as well as practical styles, styles, in both lace and button boots. Built on graceful lines, they give the arch a beautiful curve and fit to perfection. Two-tones and solid color effects, to wear with the Spring Costume.

DRISCOLL IS RESCUED FROM WATERY GRAVE

Prompt Work of William Parks and Warren Miles Saves Fellow Laborer.

James Driscoll had a narrow escape from being drowned in the Piscataqua river on Saturday afternoon and owes his life to the prompt action of his fellow laborers, William Parks and Warren Miles. Driscoll, who was working on a coal barge being discharged at C. E. Walker & Co.'s wharf at the foot of State street was descending from the wharf to the barge when the ladder turned and threw him into the river between the wharf and the barge. The tide was running strong at the time and Driscoll was in danger of being swept under the wharf and to his death. Parks and Miles took in the situation at a glance and hastily procuring a ladder they put it over the side of the barge and Mr. Driscoll seized it and was drawn aboard the barge. He suffered no ill effects from his immersion in the icy waters of the Piscataqua and after a change of clothing returned to his work in discharging the barge.

PAINTERS GO BACK TO WORK TODAY

Cannot Do Any Work Where Non-Union Labor Has Been Employed.

The crew of painters employed by the firm of F. A. Gray & Co., who have been away from work since Wednesday last, went back today on the following agreement: In future they are not to be employed in work on any building or at any place where non union mechanics are hired or have been previously employed.

The settlement was effected in part through the efforts of the third vice-president, Collier, of Worcester, Mass., who came here today and succeeded in getting all parties concerned to agree to the above named arrangements. Other matters involving labor questions in which the local union is concerned were also brought to a head.

DEBATING CLUB AFFILIATED WITH NATIONAL BODY

A generation ago hundreds of debating societies were active in every town, city and state in the Union, but of late years these have gradually passed out of existence and for a time nothing was found to take their place. But in the present generation the open forum appears to have sprung up, and it has grown in popularity until these meetings are being held throughout the United States and Canada. The open forum, in the opinion of a prominent Portsmouth man, is the bridge across the chasm of misunderstanding. It is a combination of the university and the New England town meeting and its friends believe that the democracy of discussion is essential to the democracy of government, and that the forum is the most democratic movement of modern times, a genuine instrument of progress.

The debating society filled a great place in the country's growth and activities during past years and today its place is taken by the forum. Henry Clay, the great Southern statesman, once said that had it not been for a little debating society down on the James river in Virginia, he probably would have lived and died a clerk in a small grocery store.

The Portsmouth Debating Society has lately joined the Congress of Forums, a national order with which two hundred forums are affiliated, having headquarters in New York City.

CELEBRATES EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Commer Entertain at Home on Gardner Street.

One of the most enjoyable house gatherings of the winter season took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Commer, No. 41 Gardner street on Friday evening where a party of twenty-five assembled in honor of the eighth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Commer. The home bore exquisite decorations of cut flowers, potted plants and patriotic colors. During the hours of merriment the guests were treated to a most pleasing program of vocal and instrumental music. Dancing added another feature to the occasion and a most sumptuous banquet was served at 10 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Commer were former residents of Brooklyn but have resided in this city for the past year, and since making Portsmouth their home have made many warm friends and acquaintances.

Mr. Commer is attached to the detention ship Southern at the navy yard as commissary steward and is justly popular among his associates in the service of the navy.

THE HERALD HEARS

That the fire alarm was good and strong this morning and nobody could mistake the time signal sounded at 8.30.

That Captain Badwell of the local coast artillery company says he is picking up some good men in bringing the company up to war strength.

That the several fire companies meet tonight.

That the Red Necktie club are ready for the trenches in Eppling.

That the hardware club out of business in Maine.

That the bone dry bill will put many to bed.

That the former inauguration ceremonies of President Wilson, was attended by a big storm, similar to that of today.

That we also had the worst storm of the winter a year ago today.

That while New England was wrapping up in the worst snow storm of the winter, President Wilson was inaugurated with fair weather in Washington today.

That the past year shows an increase in marriages in many New England cities.

That the high cost of living is side-tracked when Dan Cupid starts shooting.

That the school department wants $65,000 from the city council finance committee.

That the police will have to put on their gunshoes to get the Press Club.

That Harvard students smoked fewer cigars and played less pool than the year previous.

That if this reform hits the college boys much harder, there will be nothing for Billy Sunday and other evangelists to do.

That the mintage of 2 1/2 cent pieces is likely to prove a bad feature in the receipts of the contribution box.

That John Readan, a former employee of the People's Market, who lately moved to California, is now employed in a department store in San Francisco.

That the boys at the Market say John is lonesome for Portsmouth and they hope a change to the ribbon counter may help him to forget his old haunts in the East.

That Bill Dollar of Peru, Indiana, killed his mother, his daughter, shot his son and then committed suicide.

That this was a lot for 'one Dollar Bill.

That it is lucky the President did not have the "bone dry" bill to sign before New Years as the water wagon would not have been able to get away with the loads.

MRS. COWLES IN AUTOMOBILE COLLISION

While on Her Way to Take Train for Williamsburg, Va., to Fight for Her Children.

Mrs. Florence J. Cowles of Brookline, former wife of Dr. E. S. Cowles, narrowly escaped injury in an automobile collision at the corner of Marion and Park streets in Brookline, shortly after noon Sunday.

Mrs. Cowles had just left her home, 94 Marion street, where she has been living with her mother since her divorce, in a taxicab operated by Herbert A. Phelan. The taxi was going east on Marion street and at the corner of Park street it came in collision with an automobile owned by W. C. Otis of 54 Winchester street, Brookline, going south on Park street.

The larger machine crashed into the side of the taxi, doing considerable damage. Mrs. Cowles who was the only passenger in the taxi was thrown against the side of the machine but was unharmed. She called another taxi.

Mrs. Cowles was on her way to Boston to take the 1 o'clock train for Williamsburg, Va. She received word last week from Dr. Cowles that his petition for the guardianship of their two children had been granted in Williamsburg on Feb. 22. She is on her way there to contest this new development.

POLICE COURT

Cornelius Reese and Eva Wilson, colored residents of Ladd street, got an early morning call from the police this morning. The officers visited their place of abode just before 3 o'clock and arrested them both on a complaint charging a statutory offense. In the municipal court today they both pleaded guilty and were each fined $38.18, which they paid.

John Sullivan was ordered to serve a term of 60 days at the county farm on a charge of drunkenness.

in "THE HOUSE BUILT UPON THE SANDS."

It is a subject for deep thought. It appeals to the masses. Every organized worker should see it. Every society woman should see it. The husband builds a clubhouse for the workmen, but the wife forms a woman's club and burns it down.
